Earlier this year, the Institute of Medicine released a landmark report blasting the federal government for its failure to respond to the chronic viral hepatitis crisis. While a bipartisan coalition has come together in Congress to address this crisis, the Administration's meager response in its 2011 budget proposal means that more people will needlessly suffer in the coming year, particularly minority populations.

The NVHR rally is designed to keep the pressure on until Congress and the Administration act on HR 3974, "The Viral Hepatitis & Liver Cancer Control & Prevention Act."
